

They were appreciated for their effort and were gifted books

Gujarat National Law University (GNLU) has initiated a programme for the students that recognises and awards the students who consider cleanliness and upkeep of the hostel room and premises as part of their life and responsibilities. An award ceremony to this effect was recently held at the premises of the university.

GNLU has allocated more than Rs2 crore in its 2015-16 budget for promoting and recognising students' participation in national and international programmes and activities. Director, professor Bimal N Patel stated, "Such practices would definitely help the students to have holistic development and come out as a better human beings and a citizen of this country."

It was presided over by the director, professor Bimal N Patel, the registrar of GNLU Dr Thomas Mathew and the dean of Students' Welfare Dr Joshua N Aston. Several other senior faculties were present on the occasion. The cleanest rooms from each floor of the boy's and girl's hostel were identified and the students living in those rooms were awarded for maintaining cleanliness and hygiene of the room as well as the premises. They were appreciated for their effort and were gifted books as a token of appreciation.

Apart from this, the best performers and contributors of each cell or committee of the extra-curricular activities of the university were given due recognition and were appreciated for bringing laurels to the university as well as adding value to their own careers.