- Q.3 “The Joint Hindu Family as an institution is peculiar to Hindu Jurisprudence. Though it originated in the propagation of the theory of conferring upon the father nearly absolute authority, however, by efflux of time, the system was considerably whittled down so as to confer equal rights on the sons by birth. The induction of coparceners by birth into the family considerably reduced the absolute power of the father. A Joint Hindu Family consists of all persons lineally descended from a common ancestor, and includes their wives and unmarried daughters. The joint and undivided family is the normal condition of the Hindu society. An undivided Hindu Family is ordinarily joint not only in estate, but also in food and worship. The existence of joint estate is not an essential requisite to constitute a joint family, and a family which does not own any property, may nevertheless be joint. On the other hand a Hindu coparcenary is a much narrower body than the joint family. It includes only those limited persons who acquire an interest in the joint or coparcenary property.” (10)

In light of the above statement elucidate the conception of a coparcenary under Hindu Law. Differentiate between the conception of coparcenary and coparcenary property according to Mitakshara law and Dayabhaga Law with suitable examples.

- Q.4 A person is free to give his property to another person during his lifetime. This right to dispose of his property at his pleasure is universally recognized. Under Muslim law also, a person is free to make a gift. Elucidate the concept of gift, discuss the essential condition for a valid gift and explain the various kinds of gifts under Muslim law. (10)
- Q.5 Differentiate between the Sunni and Shia schools with respect to Will under Muslim Law. (08)
